Allenhouse adjudged best upcoming college

Kanpur: The Allenhouse Institute of Technology, Kanpur, has been adjudged as the 'best upcoming engineering college' amongst all the new private engineering colleges in the city. The institute was presented the 'best upcoming engineering college' award by Kiran Bedi. The Allenhouse was selected for the award on the basis of a market research study conducted by a Delhi-based company to identify educational institutions exemplifying excellence. The institute offers BTech degree courses in four disciplines - mechanical engineering, computer science and engineering, electronics and communication engineering and electrical engineering. Sanjay Kumar, vice president of the research company, said, "The institute scored extremely well in our study due to its highly qualified and experienced faculty and better infrastructure." - IANS
